Faculty Club Will Move To Spindletop Hall

The roles of Spindletop Hall and Carnahan House were switched at a meeting of the Kentucky Research Foundation Board of Directors May 29.

Under the change, Spindletop Hall will become the home of the University of Kentucky faculty-staff-alumni house, a self-sustaining organization, and Carnahan House will become the site for University-sponsored meetings, institutes, and seminars.

Approval of the moves, recommended by University President Frank G. Dickey and Dr. Frank D. Peterson, University vice president for business administration and president of the UK faculty-staff-alumni house, came at the annual dinner meeting of KRF.

The KRF directors authorized the faculty-staff-alumni club membership to move to Spindletop Hall when the mansion can be adequately furnished. Meetings, conferences, and seminars now being held at Spindletop Hall will be switched to Carnahan House.

The trading of roles, Peterson explained, is more in keeping with both the facilities of Spindletop and Carnahan.

Since it was organized in 1958, the club has grown to 625 memberships representing nearly 2,500 persons. For the membership to stay at Carnahan, the dining area would have to be increased, the kitchen facilities doubled, and the size of the swimming pool doubled, according to a survey of the facilities by two committees.

Generally, Spindletop is much too large for a conference-seminar site, Peterson said. The Spindletop pool, twice the size of the one at Carnahan, will be more than adequate for the membership.

Dr. Peterson said that Carnahan House will provide ample space and is much more adaptable for institutes, conferences, and seminars. University-sponsored

3,000 Will Convene At Engineering Meet

By WESLEY ROSS
Kernel Staff Writer

The largest convention to meet on campus will convene Monday with some 3,000 engineering educators attending the 69th annual meeting of the American Society for Engineering Education.

Dr. Frank J. Welch, assistant Secretary of Agriculture and dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics on leave, will be the principal speaker on June 30. Dr. Welch will speak on "Needs and Opportunities in World Food Production, Processing and Distribution," at 11 a.m. in Guignol Theater.

The theme of engineering's foreign relations will be stressed by leading speakers during the five-day meeting. Among them are Paul G. Hoffman, managing director of the United Nations Special Fund, speaking on "International Relations in Engineering," and Dr. Merriam H. Trytten, director of the Office of Scientific Personnel for the National Research Council—National Academy of Sciences. Dr. Trytten's topic is "Selection of Engineers and Scientists for Foreign Assignments."

A special report will be made by a committee created in 1959 by the Ford Foundation, at the request of the State Department, on the role of the American university in world affairs.

The reports will be delivered by Dr. Harvie Branscomb, chancellor of Vanderbilt University; Dr. Henry R. Labouisse, director of the International Cooperation Administration; and Dr. Cornelius W. DeKiewiet, president of the University of Rochester.

New fields of engineering to be incorporated into college curricula, research on the most effective ways of teaching engineering subjects, problems of initiating new research, and budgeting research proposals for federal agencies will be emphasized by the engineering teachers and college administrators attending the sessions.

Three summer schools will be held in conjunction with the annual meeting. They are "Research in Metal Processing in Industry, in Engineering Colleges, and in College Curriculums," "Workshop on Direct Energy Conversion," and "Aeronautical Curriculum Planning."

More than 150 conferences, meetings, and sessions are included in the Society's program. Dr. Eric A. Walker, president of the Pennsylvania State University, will preside as president of the ASEE.

Dr. Merl Baker, executive director of the Kentucky Research Foundation, is general chairman of local arrangements. He said that "A complete program has been planned for wives and children accompanying ASEE members at the meeting."

"Many of these families will make the annual meeting part of plans for vacations in the Blue Grass."

UK Museum Director Explores Grand Canyon

Dr. Douglas W. Schwartz, director of the University Museum of Anthropology, is exploring the bottom of the Grand Canyon this month in an effort to learn about Indians who supposedly lived there from 1050 to 1150 A.D.

He is accompanied by Robert A. Wiggs, assistant professor in art at UK, and Berle Clay, Paris, a graduate student in anthropology. Wiggs is making diagrams and drawings of the terrain because photographs do not give a good perspective.

Schwartz has been surveying the vast rim of the canyon each summer for the past 10 years. On June 11, a helicopter deposited the three-man party on the base of the canyon. There the men inflated life rafts and loaded them with supplies. They will travel for 14 days along a river in the 217-mile long and 220-mile wide canyon which ends in the 30-foot Granite Falls.

The Hopi Indians, who live near the Grand Canyon, Dr. Schwartz said, have a bit of folklore which states that the tribe came from a hole in the bottom of the canyon. "Maybe we can shed some light on their own mythology," he said.

Dr. Schwartz and his party will seek to learn if Indians at any time ever lived beside the river bottom, what role the river played in their lives, whether they farmed there, and why they left after only about 100 years.

An experienced outdoor cook and canoe enthusiast, Prof. Wiggs is in charge of food preparation.

The trip is financed by a $750 faculty research grant, which is being used to purchase supplies, food, film, and pay travel expenses. The National Park Service also has made a grant of $500 for the helicopter expenses. The Park Service has cooperated with Dr. Schwartz for many years because it is anxious to obtain more information about the canyon to present to visitors who flock to that area—four million strong each year.

Several years ago, Dr. Schwartz lived for six months with an Indian tribe in the canyon. Until this year, he has loaded a 70-pound supply pack and carried it down into the canyon.

Watermelon Feast

The annual Watermelon Feast will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, June 29, on the west lawn of the SUB.

The feast is open to all summer school students, faculty, and their families.

Tickets must be purchased in Room 122 of the SUB or at the Keeneland Hall desk before June 28.

In case of rain the event will be held at the same time on Friday, June 30.

123 Make Spring Semester Dean's List

Names of 123 students are included on the dean's list of the University's College of Arts and Sciences, released by Dean M. M. White.

Spindletop Director Proposes Center

The Spindletop Research Institute has proposed a plan to help Kentuckians live longer with fewer disabilities and with reduced physical and mental anguish and strain.

Dr. E. Litkenhouse, director of the Spindletop Research Institute, outlined the plan in the form of a proposal for a safety research and service center to be located at Spindletop Farm.

The plan was outlined at the windup session of last week's Kentucky Safety Seminar meeting in Lexington.

"Detailed study of practically any accident by qualified but impartial investigators almost invariably reveals that the accident could have been prevented by proper action on the part of the individual involved," Dr. Litkenhouse said in prefacing his proposal.

Explaining that major industries had practically eliminated accidents through such gathering, compiling, and dissemination of information on causes of accidents, he stated that there is no reason why similar research cannot go a long way in improving the Kentucky accident situation.

The Spindletop project would provide safety research into such areas as home, industry, and business; transportation and highway; recreational, fire and police techniques; institutions and schools; farming and forestry; mining; construction and military operation.

Dr. Litkenhouse proposed three phases of activity at the safety research center. They are:

1. Accumulation, classification, and dissemination of known and existing information and techniques.
 2. Research and development of new and improved methods of safe living.
 3. Promotion of the utilization of the research results through the proper agencies and channels.
- "The real key to improvement in safety performances lies in the application of technical principles, techniques, and the proper utilization of information," Dr. Litkenhouse stated.

Opera Tryouts To Be Sunday

Auditions for the Guignol Theater's production of "Oklahoma," the 11th annual summer musical, will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Guignol Theater.

Wallace Briggs, director of the Guignol Theater, said the auditions will be held for the singing chorus, dancing chorus, and principal parts. He added that any student or Lexingtonian is invited to participate in the auditions.

The musical by Rodgers and Hammerstein will be presented August 1-5. It is a joint production of the Guignol Theater and the Opera work shop of the Department of Music.

and symptoms and within seconds be told an antidote for that patient. Such a system could serve a large area, or even the entire United States."

The proposal was endorsed by the officials attending the seminar and Dr. Litkenhouse was urged to obtain statewide support for such a center.

Haggin Hall, the new air-conditioned men's dormitory, is open for summer use for the first time. The dormitory has a capacity of 575, and approximately 200 of these will be summer school students, both graduate and undergraduate.

The remaining dormitory space is being reserved for delegates of various conventions, both men and women.

There are a few students residing temporarily in Kinkead Hall in the Men's Quadrangle, but they will be moved to Haggin within the next two weeks.

All of the women's dormitories will be open this summer, with Keeneland and Holmes Halls being used by students. The other women's residence halls will be occupied by delegates to conventions.

Campus Bells And Clocks Stopped Until July 15

Want to know the time? Well, you'll have to wait until July 15 before you'll find out from the clocks on the campus. This is the date set for the completion of a new electronic system now being installed by the University.

The clocks have been out of order for about a week because of trouble in the underground cable system. Rather than trying to locate the trouble the University is installing a 628 relay system that operates on a wireless electrical transmission to a relay, thus eliminating the use of an underground cable.

Clyde Lilly, chief clerk of M&O, said this new system is being installed in all new buildings. He said the clocks will be more accurate and more dependable.

The Medical Center will serve as the master control for the clocks. From there signals will be transmitted to relay stations over the campus.

At present the Medical Center and Haggin Hall are operating on this new system.

Future Teachers To Be Interviewed

Officials from Kentucky and out-of-state schools will be on campus during June and July for interviews with interested teacher candidates.

meetings too large for Carnahan, will continue to be held at Spindletop.

Peterson said the club, maintained solely by membership fees, does not contemplate raising its dues. Increase in membership will bring in additional dues necessary to operate the larger facilities. Peterson also said that plans and specifications for a filter system for the 125,000 gallon Spindletop swimming pool have been called for.

The Carnahan House membership at its annual meeting in April approved a move to larger quarters. A joint meeting of Carnahan House committees has recommended the change and the Board of Directors has given its approval.

More deaths in the 45 to 65 age group are caused by heart and blood vessel diseases than by the next five leading causes of death combined.

Dr. Peterson said the move to Spindletop may result in the liberalization of restrictions on alumni membership in the club. At Carnahan, only alumni of Fayette and adjoining counties have been eligible for membership.

The move to Spindletop Hall, located on the Ironworks Pike, will be made as soon as the mansion can be more adequately furnished, Dr. Peterson said.

Carnahan House is located on Coldstream Farm on the Newtown Pike.

Euclid Underpass To Be Constructed

A "blister-type" underpass will be constructed on Euclid Avenue near Harrison Avenue as part of the current street-widening program.

The underpass would be constructed by building up the street on both sides, leaving a 30-foot gap for a passageway.

Dr. Frank G. Dickey said the construction of a conventional-type underpass, with steps going down and up, had been ruled out on the grounds that such a structure would be dangerous to the coeds for whose use it would be principally intended.

The idea of an overpass had also been rejected on the grounds that large numbers of students would fail to use it.

"Some type of structure was thought necessary because the large number of students crossing Euclid Avenue would tend to defeat the purpose of widening the street, as well as create danger to pedestrians," Dr. Dickey said.
